| Assessment Task (with genre/type) | 1. Interim Project Report This is a substantial written document serving as the foundational plan for the project. It requires you to clearly define the chosen discipline-relevant problem and substantiate its importance through a detailed review of relevant studies, drawing on the subject's existing academic and professional knowledge base. You will also outline the project aims, scope, methodology, and a realistic timeline. It should also include preliminary consideration of feasibility, potential risks, and ethical aspects related to the project's execution. Learning Outcomes Primarily Addressed: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Review the existing academic or professional knowledge base to scope and substantiate a discipline-relevant problem.</li> <li>• Formulate and manage an iterative project plan to address the identified problem, considering feasibility, risks, and ethical aspects.</li> </ul> 2. This report focuses on work completed to date, particularly on the design of the artefact, and details the chosen discipline-specific methodologies and techniques being applied. It should also include updated planning for the project's completion, demonstrating how the initial plan has evolved. Learning Outcomes Primarily Addressed: <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Formulate and manage an iterative project plan to address the identified problem, considering feasibility, risks, and ethical aspects.</li><li>• Apply discipline-specific methodologies and techniques to design the artefact that addresses the identified problem.</li></ul> 4. Final Report This is the culminating written output, a comprehensive document detailing the entire project journey. It includes a refined problem statement and literature review (i.e., covered in the extended project blueprint). However, the focus should be on providing a thorough account of the design and development of the artefact, a detailed description of the implementation process, and a robust critical evaluation of the artefact's relevance and impact within a suitable societal, industrial, or scholarly context. Learning Outcomes Primarily Addressed: <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Apply discipline-specific methodologies and techniques to design the artefact that addresses the identified problem.</li><li>• Implement the designed artefact to address the intended purpose.</li><li>• Critically evaluate the artefact's relevance and impact within a suitable societal, industry or scholarly context.</li></ul> 5. Poster + Viva This assessment comprises two parts: a project poster that visually summarises your project outcomes, and an oral defence. You will present your work in a formal setting, such as Innovation Fest, demonstrating your ability to effectively communicate the project outcomes and defend your work. The oral defence aims to assess your understanding of the problem, design choices, implementation challenges, evaluation, and overall project management. Learning Outcomes Primarily Addressed: <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Effectively communicate the project outcomes to diverse audiences.</li><li>• All LOs (deep understanding): Demonstrated through defence of project work.</li></ul> |

| Things to include: | 1. Interim Project Report <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Problem Definition: Briefly introduce the topic and establish the context. Explain why the area is important and provide a strong hook to engage the reader.</li> <li>• Review: This is a crucial part of the proposal. You should review existing academic or professional knowledge, theories, and studies relevant to your topic. The aim is not merely to summarise but to critically analyse to identify a "gap" or scope and to substantiate the project idea or the problem that needs solving, or a new perspective to explore. This section offers the justification for your project.</li> <li>• Aims, Objectives and Scope: Based on the identified gap, clearly state your project's overall aim. Then, break it down into 4-5 SMART (Specific, Measurable, Achievable, Relevant, Time-bound) objectives. These are the tangible steps you will take to achieve your aim.</li> <li>• Design, Methods &amp; Timeline: Describe the "how" of your project. Explain the methods you will use to design, develop, validate, and evaluate your appraisal. These methods will differ depending on the type of project you are undertaking, such as experiments, surveys, interviews, case study analysis, or software development. Justify why these methods are the most suitable for your project and how they address the objectives. Provide a realistic timeline for the entire project, using a Gantt chart.</li> <li>• Feasibility, Risks &amp; Ethical Aspects: The idea is to demonstrate the project's practicality and responsibility. So, you need to address whether your project is realistic and achievable within the given timeframe and resources. Identify potential risks (e.g., "access to data is delayed," "key software has a steep learning curve") and suggest practical ways to mitigate them. Also, discuss how you will deal with the ethical implications of your project, particularly concerning data, privacy, and social impact.</li> </ul> 2. Interim Progress Review <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Log Content &amp; Detail: A succinct summary of the tasks you have completed since the proposal was submitted. Please be specific (e.g., "completed chapters 1 &amp; 2," "designed the artefact").</li> <li>• Reflection &amp; Iteration: Display your progress compared to your original Gantt chart. This visual helps you see if you are on track, ahead, or behind schedule. Reflect on issues you have encountered. More importantly, describe the steps you have taken, or intend to take, to resolve them. This exemplifies problem-solving capabilities.</li> <li>• Action Plan: Outline your main goals ahead of the upcoming deadline. This demonstrates proactive planning.</li> </ul> |

Final Progress Review <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Progress to Date: a short, single-paragraph summary of your project's status, major activities since the previous update, and primary early findings.</li> <li>• Artefact Design: This section is the core of the report. Include any initial experiment, design, development or key elements of your artefact. It does not need to be perfect, but it should demonstrate concrete progress. Go beyond simply presenting results. Consider their potential implications. How do they connect to your original problem idea/ questions? In what ways has your understanding of the project changed?</li> <li>• Updated Planning: Outline your main goals ahead of the upcoming deadline. This demonstrates proactive planning. For example, create a bullet-point outline for your final report, including chapter titles and main points for each chapter, that have meaningful reflection of the context and go beyond generic titles like Introduction, Methods, Design, Testing, Discussion and Conclusion.</li> </ul> 4. Final Report <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>- Artefact Design: this should be objective and factual (use tables, graphs, and figures where appropriate).</li> <li>- Implementation: This is where you explain how your artefact addresses your project questions. Discuss the construction of the artefact. which can include structuring and validating the artefact through logical consistency with appropriate evidence.</li> <li>- Critical Evaluation: Summarise your artefact and explain its significance. How does it compare with other similar work from the knowledge base you reviewed? What is the impact of your artefact? What are the limitations of your work? Restate the contribution your project has made. Include practical implications or suggest future research directions.</li> </ul> 5. Poster + Viva <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>- Poster Design &amp; Content: a visual summary of your project. Think of it as a graphical abstract designed to be understood by an informed reader in just a few minutes. It should be: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>✓ Concise: Use bullet points, short sentences, and visuals. Avoid long paragraphs of text.</li> <li>✓ Visual: Use charts, graphs, images, and diagrams to tell your story.</li> <li>✓ Logical: The layout should guide the reader through your project logically, generally starting with the introduction and aims, then moving through methods and key findings, to a conclusion.</li> </ul> </li> <li>- Oral Presentation: This is a short, formal interview with one or two assessors (often including your supervisor). You will stand by your poster and give a brief (2-3 minute) overview of your project.</li> <li>- Defence: The assessors will then ask you questions for 2-3 minutes. ### Referencing Style

- BCU Harvard

More information on referencing is available here: <https://www.bcu.ac.uk/library/services-and-support/referencing>

Use of Artificial Intelligence

PROHIBITED

You MUST NOT use any generative Artificial Intelligence in this assessment unless specifically authorised for reasonable adjustments. You MAY use non-generative tools such as a spell-check, basic grammar check (non-generative), calculator or similar. If you have any doubts about using an AI tool, please consult the Student AI Guidelines or ask your tutor.

Whilst AI tools can be helpful in assisting learning, when it comes to assessment, the Academic Misconduct Procedure is clear that this should be a student's own original work and not the work of other people or AI tools.

The Use of AI Tools – Student Guidelines follows the same guidelines your lecturers use. If you are unsure of whether AI is appropriate within your work, please read the guidelines or ask your lecturer. For advice and guidance around academic writing, please visit the Centre for Academic Success.

Academic Integrity Guidance

Academic Integrity means completing and submitting your own original work while properly acknowledging sources. Following academic conventions, such as referencing and citation, helps avoid plagiarism. The Centre for Academic Success offers resources on Moodle, workshops and 1-2-1 support to improve skills like paraphrasing and referencing.

Academic Misconduct

BCU Assessment Brief (T1)

Academic misconduct is conduct that has or may have the effect of providing you with an unfair advantage by relying on dishonest means to gain an advantage and which therefore compromises your academic integrity.

The Academic Misconduct Procedure sets out the process we will follow and the penalties we may apply in cases where we believe you may have compromised your academic integrity by committing academic misconduct.

Word Count

The maximum word count for this module assessment is shown on Page 1. A +10% margin of tolerance is applied, beyond which nothing further will be marked. Marks cannot be awarded for any learning outcomes addressed outside the word count.

The word count refers to everything in the main body of the text (including headings, tables, citations, quotes, lists, etc.). Everything before (i.e. abstract, acknowledgements, contents, executive summaries, etc.) and after (i.e. references, bibliographies, appendices, etc) is not included in the word count limit.

Submission Information

Present any written aspects of the assessment using font size 11 and using 1.5 spacing to allow for comments and annotations to be added by the markers.

Complete the appropriate cover sheet for this assessment and append your work.

This assessment will be marked by your supervisor, and most of the work will be marked by an independent second marker.

Submit this coursework assessment task via Moodle.

Late Submission

Where you are required to submit an assessment by a certain deadline (for example, essays, case studies or physical artefacts) but you fail to meet the deadline, your mark will be reduced in accordance with the Late Submissions Policy. This Policy does not apply where the assessment is 'in-person', such as exams and in-class tests.

For support on submission, please review the Submitting Your Assignment e-learning resource.

| Feasibility, Risks & Ethical Aspects10% | Excellent analysis of risks and mitigation actions to address potential risks and ethical challenges. There is a detailed, practical, and realistic feasibility assessment. | Comprehensive identification and effective mitigation of risks and ethical concerns. A comprehensive and realistic feasibility assessment. | Thoroughly identifies risks and ethical considerations. A detailed feasibility assessment. | Provided a detailed identification of core risks and ethical considerations. While a feasibility assessment was included, it did not demonstrate practical feasibility. | A brief discussion of core risks and ethical considerations is offered. Although a basic feasibility assessment was included, it did not offer a realistic evaluation. | The discussion of risks and ethical considerations is superficial. While there is an attempt is made to present the feasibility assessment, it remains abstract and omits the evaluation of fundamental elements. | Limited discussion of risks and ethical considerations. There is a superficial attempt to present the feasibility assessment, which omits the evaluation of fundamental elements. | Limited or no evidence regarding risks and ethical considerations. The feasibility assessment is generic and does not align with the project. |

| Progress to Date35% | Demonstrates exceptional, highly significant progress, clearly exceeding initial expectations and on a clear path to successful completion.                                              | Shows substantial, notable progress and is clearly progressing toward successful completion.                                                       | Demonstrates good progress and is on track for completion.                                                           | Demonstrates satisfactory progress, generally maintaining alignment with expectations.                                   | Progress is restricted, and there is a risk of falling behind schedule. With additional guidance, the project will stay on track.                          | Insufficient progress; significantly behind schedule. However, there is potential to achieve substantial improvement with additional guidance and support.                                                                | Limited or no progress has been observed; the project is significantly behind schedule, but there is some indication that progress can be made with additional effort and support. | Limited or no progress has been observed; the project is substantially behind schedule, and there is no indication that progress can be made without clear and concise guidance intervention. |
| Artefact Design40%  | The artefact design is exceptionally robust, highly innovative, and meticulously detailed, demonstrating expert application of advanced discipline-specific techniques or methodologies. | The artefact's design is robust, innovative, and detailed, effectively employing advanced techniques and methodologies specific to the discipline. | The artefact design is comprehensive and effectively employs techniques or methodologies relevant to the discipline. | Artefact design is generally well-grounded and uses suitable techniques tailored to the specific context and discipline. | Basic artefact design demonstrated with limited application of discipline-specific techniques or methodologies but remains aligned with the project scope. | The artefact design is suitable, but it uses generic techniques or methodologies that might not be properly aligned with the project scope.                                                                               | The artefact design is limited; it relies on a generic methodology that is not aligned with the project scope.                                                                     | The artefact design is either limited or absent. The chosen technique or methodology is inadequate or lacks essential components.                                                             |
| Updated Planning25% | The updated plan is exceptionally comprehensive and demonstrates foresight for efficient and effective completion.                                                                       | The updated plan is thorough and demonstrates clear foresight for completion.                                                                      | The revised plan is well-defined and sufficiently detailed for on-time completion.                                   | The updated plan is generally clear and shows some adaptation for completion.                                            | The revised plan includes details about the next steps in the project, suggesting that the project remains on schedule.                                    | The revised plan shows completed tasks but lacks details of the upcoming steps in the project. However, there is some indication that it is still on track. Additional support is needed to keep the project on schedule. | The revised plan is unclear, and there are indications that the project has been delayed. Support and guidance are needed to help get the project back on track.                   | The revised plan is vague, impractical, or notably lacking in detail. There is no sign that progress can be achieved without clear and precise guidance or intervention.                      |

| Artefact Design30%     | Artefact is a highly robust, innovative, and meticulously detailed explanation of the design that showcases the technical use of discipline-specific methods or methodologies.            | Artefact is innovative, and a detailed explanation of the design is provided. There is clear evidence of employing discipline-specific methods or methodologies effectively. | Artefact is robust, with a detailed explanation of the design, meets objectives and employs suitable discipline-specific methods or methodologies.              | The artefact is well-developed, and a design explanation is provided, indicating that it meets most of the objectives. Relevant discipline-specific methods or methodologies are used.                    | A relevant artefact is developed, offering key components that meet some of the objectives. However, there is a limited explanation of the design, and it employs generic methods or methodologies. | Artefact includes some of the key core components but does not provide an explanation of the design. The methods or methodologies used are unclear or incorrectly applied.             | An artefact is presented, but it lacks essential components. The design appears unorganised, and the methods or methodologies used are misapplied.            | An artefact is missing, or the one presented is inappropriate or irrelevant to the stated objectives. No suitable methods or methodologies were employed, or they are absent. |
| Implementation30%      | The Implementation of the artefact design and validation/testing is exceptionally clear and comprehensive, making it easy to understand the methodological approach and methods followed. | The implementation of the artefact design and validation/testing is complete, offering an understanding of the applied methodological approach and methods.                  | The implementation of the artefact design and validation or testing is complete, and offers an understanding of the applied methodological approach and methods | The implementation of the artefact design and validation/testing is complete, providing an understanding of the applied methods; however, it lacks a detailed explanation of the methodological approach. | The implementation of the artefact design and validation/testing is appropriate, but there are gaps in the methodological application of the approach.                                              | The implementation of the artefact design is complete, but the validation or testing is incomplete, insufficient, or the methodological approach is flawed.                            | The implementation of the artefact's design and validation/testing is incomplete, and the methodological approach and methods used are inappropriate.         | The implementation of the artefact's design and validation/testing is incomplete or absent. There are considerable flaws in the methodological approach and methods employed. |
| Critical Evaluation40% | The evaluation offers a deeply insightful and objective perspective, thoughtfully exploring the artefact's significance, influence, and future possibilities.                             | The evaluation offers valuable insights and thoughtfully examines the artefact's relevance, impact, and future possibilities.                                                | The evaluation offers an objective examination of the artefact, highlighting its relevance and impact.                                                          | The evaluation is solid, striking a balance between objectivity and a straightforward analysis of the artefact's significance and impact.                                                                 | The evaluation is presented but lacks a detailed objective perspective and analysis of its significance in relation to the specified problem.                                                       | The evaluation is completed but flawed, as it is only partially contextualised to the problem. Although it addresses its relevance and impact, it remains incomplete and insufficient. | The evaluation is either incomplete or not adequately contextualised to the specified problem. There is minimal discussion of the relevance and implications. | The evaluation is either absent or too vague without sufficient detail. There is no discussion of its relevance and implications, or the discussion is irrelevant.            |
